

Twas the night before Christmas when all through Stillwaters

Not a creature was stirring – not even those cute and friendly neighborhood deer.

The decorations are hung by the roof lines with care,

In hopes that Christmas and families soon would be there.

Merry Christmas Everyone From Stillwaters Staff!

Here's the real poem for your reading pleasure:

Written by Clement Clarke Moore in 1822. It was originally titled A Visit from St. Nicholas, and was written for his family.
